

Something New in Mathematics Professional Learning: Watch and Learn

This professional learning opportunity is designed for teachers who want to see best practice maths pedagogy applied in an authentic classroom situation. It provides the best possible professional learning opportunity with a highly regarded expert in mathematics education, Rob Vingerhoets.

Each day begins with the explanation of an effective lesson structure using engaging, open ended activities. This is followed by the demonstration of the structure and the activities - differentiated to meet the needs of students and in a real classroom.

Due to the classroom component of the day, each of the four days is strictly limited to 15 participants, so it's first in – best dressed.*

OUTLINE of the DAY

Session 1 (9:10 – 11:00)

This session gives participants the outline and explanation of a highly effective lesson structure for maths teaching using guaranteed engaging, open-ended activities targeted to their year level.

Session 2 (11:30 – 1:20)

This session provides participants with the opportunity to see the lesson structure and open-ended activities applied in a real classroom.

Session 3 (2:00 – 3:00)

The final session adds to the participants' repertoire of open-ended problem solving activities targeted to their year level, plus some very worthwhile share/reflection activities that will get their students talking and writing about maths.
